INTRODUCTION

ABOUT AMERISPEAK

Funded and operated by NORC at the University of Chicago, AmeriSpeak® is a probability-based panel designed to be representative of the US household population. Randomly selected US households are sampled with a known, non-zero probability of selection from the NORC National Sample Frame, and then contacted by US mail, email, telephone, and field interviewers (face to face). AmeriSpeak panelists participate in NORC studies or studies conducted by NORC on behalf of governmental agencies, academic researchers, and media and commercial organizations.

Respect for the principles of voluntariness and informed consent as described in the Belmont Report¹ is central to our procedures in building and maintaining the AmeriSpeak Panel. Participation in research is voluntary at the time that respondents are asked to join the panel, at the time they are asked to participate in any particular survey, and at the time they answer any given question in a survey. AmeriSpeak panelists are not coerced to participate in any research, and they are not removed from the panel as a result of failure to participate in any particular survey project or program of studies. AmeriSpeak panelists have the option to ‘opt-out’ of the panel at any time by notifying NORC. NORC maintains a dedicated email queue, a toll-free phone number and its own call-center panel management facility to receive requests for information and action from panelists.

J. Michael Dennis is the Executive Director of AmeriSpeak, and a Senior Vice President at NORC, and has completed human subjects training from NORC, NIH, University of California (Irvine), and Stanford University. Other key staff has also completed human subjects training as required by NORC’s internal IRB.

ABOUT NORC

As one of the world’s foremost independent research institutions, NORC at the University of Chicago delivers objective data and meaningful analysis to help decision-makers and leading organizations make informed choices and identify new opportunities. Since 1941, NORC has applied sophisticated methods and tools, innovative and cost-effective solutions, and the highest standards of scientific integrity and quality to conduct and advance research on critical issues. Today, NORC expands on this tradition by partnering with government, business, and nonprofit clients to create deep insight across a broad range of topics and to disseminate useful knowledge throughout society.

Headquartered in downtown Chicago, NORC works in over 40 countries around the world, with additional offices on the University of Chicago campus, the DC metro area, Atlanta, Boston, Silicon Valley and San Francisco.

NORC INSTITUTIONAL REVIEW BOARD (IRB)

NORC operates its own Institutional Review Board (IRB) which follows a formal process for examining all research projects to assure human subjects protections and minimize respondent burden. In addition, NORC routinely produces materials for Office of Management and Budget (OMB) review of proposed federal data collection efforts, including their review of respondent burden minimization techniques. Beyond federal requirements, NORC researchers strive to reduce respondent burden in order to maximize response and overall public benefit deriving from survey research work.

NORC’s IRB has the corporate responsibility for monitoring survey procedures to ensure the confidentiality of persons and establishments participating in a study. Before any survey may begin, the Principal Investigator or Project Director must submit a formal protocol to address human subject protections that includes all survey materials and instruments. The IRB Administrator and Chair are responsive to the need for timely reviews, and all Board members take an active role in helping guide protocols to meet the highest standards for human subject protections.

NORC's IRB has obtained a Federal Wide Assurance (FWA) and is registered with the Federal Office for Human Research Protections. The FWA demonstrates that the NORC IRB complies with the strict U.S. Department of Health and Human Services regulations. NORC's IRB requires that research protocols, both for projects in the U.S. and internationally, provide sufficient detail to ensure that (1) the selection of subjects is equitable, subjects' privacy is protected, and data confidentiality is maintained; (2) informed consent is written in language that study participants can understand and is obtained without coercion or undue influence; and (3) appropriate safeguards protect the rights and welfare of vulnerable subjects. Reviewed materials include the informed consent statements, all contact materials, and the survey instruments. In addition, the protocol must include the curriculum used for training interviewers and other project staff on human subject protections, as well as the security plan to safeguard data security and the information technology infrastructure for collecting and transmitting data.

NORC IRB REVIEW OF AMERISPEAK RESEARCH

The NORC IRB is responsible for human subject's review of all AmeriSpeak Panel recruitment procedures. In addition, the NORC IRB reviews all publically funded research conducted using the AmeriSpeak Panel. If an external organization requires that their IRB review a study protocol NORC and its IRB will work with that organization in order to review and approve the study prior to fielding.

IRB REVIEW FOR TIME-SHARING EXPERIMENTS FOR THE SOCIAL SCIENCES (TESS)

The AmeriSpeak Panel is the data source for the National Science Foundation (NSF) funded Time-Sharing Experiments for the Social Sciences research platform (tessexperiments.org). For the TESS project, it is the responsibility of each TESS principal investigator to receive IRB approval from their university or organizational IRB prior to conducting research using AmeriSpeak. NORC's IRB will not review TESS study protocols and will rely on external IRB approval. As panel members have already agreed to participate in surveys, and since the survey research poses minimal risk to respondents, NORC and its IRB recommends that these studies be classified as exempt research unless a particular study has a unique design that warrants additional review.

AMERISPEAK METHODOLOGY AND TECHNICAL DESIGN

TARGET POPULATION

AmeriSpeak provides a representative panel of civilian, non-institutional adults (age 18 and over) living in the United States.

SAMPLE FRAME

In order to provide a nationally representative sample, AmeriSpeak leverages the NORC National Sample Frame, constructed by NORC to cover over 97 percent of U.S. households. The 2010 National Frame used a two-stage probability sample design to select a representative sample of households in the United States. The first stage—the sampling unit—is a National Frame Area (NFA), which is either an entire metropolitan area (made up of one or more counties) or a county (some counties were combined so that each NFA contains a population of at least 10,000). The largest NFAs with a population of at least 1,543,728 (0.5 percent of the 2010 Census U.S. population) were selected with certainty; these areas have a high-population density, and are dominated by tracts with street-style addresses. These areas contain 56 percent of the population within 8 percent of the geographic area of the United States. The remaining areas were stratified into areas where street-style addresses predominate, and the remaining areas, which are less likely to have street-style addresses. The latter stratum (“rural” areas) comprises 81 percent of the geographic area, but only 14 percent of the population.

Within the selected NFAs, the second stage sampling unit is a segment, defined either in terms of Census tracts or block groups, containing at least 300 housing units according to the 2010 Census. A stratified probability sample of 1,514 segments was selected with probability proportional to size. For most of the 1,514 segments, the USPS DSF provided over 90 percent coverage of the segment in terms of city-style addresses that are geocodeable. For the 123 segments where the DSF provided insufficient coverage, we enhanced the DSF address list with in-person listing. The National Sample Frame contains almost 3 million households, including over 80,000 rural households added through the in-person listing.

SAMPLE SELECTION FOR PANEL RECRUITMENT

The 2015 and 2016 AmeriSpeak Panel sample consists of nationally representative housing units drawn from the 2010 NORC National Sample Frame. The 2010 NORC National Sample Frame is stratified based on segment (Census tract or Census block group) characteristics such as age and race/ethnicity composition of the segment, and then, a stratified simple random sample of housing units is selected. Specifically, based on Census tract-level data, segments were classified as having a higher concentration of 18-24 year old adults or not, and a higher concentration of Hispanics, non-Hispanic African Americans, and other. Based on these strata definitions, 6 strata (2 based on age times 3 based on race/ethnicity) were used to oversample housing units in segments higher in young adults and/or Hispanics and non-Hispanic African-Americans. This is referred to as the initial sample or first stage of panel recruitment.

In the second stage of panel recruitment, initially sampled but nonresponding housing units are subsampled for a nonresponse follow-up (NRFU). At this stage, consumer vendor data are matched to housing units, and housing units that are flagged (based on consumer vendor data) as having a young adult or minority (Hispanic and non-Hispanic African American) are oversampled for the nonresponse follow-up. Overall, approximately one in five initially nonresponding housing units are subsampled for NRFU. However, as mentioned previously, selection of housing units for NRFU is a stratified simple random sample based on consumer vendor data. Due to NRFU, these initially nonresponding housing units have a much higher selection probability compared to the housing units that were recruited during the first stage of panel recruitment. Note that a small fraction of initially nonresponding housing units are not eligible for NRFU due to these housing units being classified as “hard refusals” or having an appointment for a call back from NORC.

In summary, there are two reasons why the sampling design for AmeriSpeak Panel recruitment deviates from EPSEM sampling: (a) oversampling of housing units in segments with a higher concentration of young adults and minorities results in the sample selection probabilities being higher for housing units in these segments; and (b) the nonresponse follow-up effort results in initially nonresponding housing units having a much higher selection probability. Furthermore, oversampling associated with NRFU results in higher selection probabilities for initially nonresponding housing units that are flagged (based on consumer vendor data) as having a young adult or minority.

AMERISPEAK PANEL RECRUITMENT PROCEDURES

Recruitment is a two-stage process: initial recruitment using less expensive methods and then non-response follow-up using personal interviewers. For the initial recruitment, sample units are invited to join AmeriSpeak online by visiting the panel website AmeriSpeak.org or by telephone (in-bound/outbound supported). English and Spanish language are supported for both online and telephone recruitment. Study invitations are communicated via an over-sized pre-notification postcard, a USPS recruitment package in a 9"x12" envelope (containing a cover letter, a summary of the privacy policy, FAQs, and a study brochure), two follow-up post cards, and also follow-up by NORC's telephone research center for matched sample units.

The second-stage non-response follow-up targets a stratified random sub-sample of the non-responders from the initial recruitment. Stratification is based on consumer vendor data and stratification variables from the initial recruitment stage in order to increase sample representation of young adults, non-Hispanic African Americans, and Hispanics. Units sampled for the non-response follow-up are sent by Federal Express a new recruitment package with an enhanced incentive offer. NORC field interviewers then make personal, face-to-face visits to the respondents' homes to encourage participation. NORC field interviewers administer the recruitment survey in-person using CAPI or else encourage the respondents to register at AmeriSpeak.org or call the toll-free AmeriSpeak telephone number to register.

CONSENTING AND INITIAL PROFILING

AmeriSpeak's recruitment procedures for protecting the rights of human research subjects have been reviewed and approved by NORC's Institutional Review Board (IRB). NORC obtains and documents informed consent and agreement to the study's Privacy Policy and Terms and Conditions during the registration process. After registration is completed, AmeriSpeak panel members first complete an introduction survey of about 15 minutes by web or by telephone asking questions about the household's composition and the person's background and interests. The introduction survey provides an initial profile of the panelist and the household. Upon completion of the registration process and introduction survey, the respondent is an active AmeriSpeak panel member eligible for client studies and additional profile surveys.

After one adult in the household becomes an active AmeriSpeak panel member, other adults in the household are invited to join AmeriSpeak. These additional adults are required to complete the same registration and introduction survey before becoming an active AmeriSpeak panel member.

During the initial profiling, some new panelists are offered the option to participate in future AmeriSpeak studies by the telephone mode of data collection instead of online. Therefore, once the initial profiling is completed, each panelists is enrolled in either the online or telephone modes of data collection for future AmeriSpeak studies.

After the initial profiling is completed via the introduction survey, subsequent NORC surveys invite the panelist to provide additional background information about public affairs, health services, health conditions, financial services, and computer and internet usage (among other topics).

PANEL MEMBER STUDY PARTICIPATION

AmeriSpeak panel members typically participate in AmeriSpeak web-based or phone-based studies two to three times a month. Surveys are usually 10 to 20 minutes in length; however, longer surveys are permitted with the allowance for additional incentives to recognize the time spent by AmeriSpeak panelists.

INCENTIVES FOR STUDY PARTICIPATION

AmeriSpeak panel members receive modest incentives, in the form of “AmeriPoints,” for participation in surveys. For the majority of surveys a respondent will earn between 2,000 and 10,000 AmeriPoints (1,000 points = $1) for completing a survey. If a survey is very long, or we ask a respondent to participate in other custom research such as an in-depth telephone interview, then they may receive an incentive greater than 10,000 points. A panel member receives points for a survey once they complete the survey. A respondent can take breaks during a survey and return where they left off. In addition they may skip survey questions that they do not wish to answer. Once a panel member has accumulated 10,000 points they can redeem for cash (in the form of a check), debit cards, gift cards, or merchandise. Online members redeem points through the AmeriSpeak web-portal. Panel member who complete surveys by phone contact the NORC toll-free support line to redeem their points.

PANEL MANAGEMENT POLICIES

NORC maintains strict rules to limit respondent burden and reduce the risk of panel fatigue. On average, AmeriSpeak panel members typically participate in AmeriSpeak web-based or phone based studies two to three times a month.

Because the risk of panel attrition increases with the fielding of poorly constructed survey questionnaires, the AmeriSpeak team works with NORC clients to create surveys that provide an appropriate user experience for AmeriSpeak panelists. During the pretesting phase of AmeriSpeak survey projects, AmeriSpeak researchers provide clients consulting on best practices for the design of survey questions. AmeriSpeak will not field surveys that in our professional opinion will result in a poor user experience for our panelists and in panel attrition.

AmeriSpeak’s recruitment procedures for protecting the rights of human research subjects have been reviewed and approved by NORC’s IRB. For publicly funded research, NORC’s IRB will review the proposed research unless an external IRB is required to conduct the protocol review. AmeriSpeak’s research staff will manage the IRB review process on behalf of its clients.

AMERISPEAK PANEL PRIVACY PROTECTIONS

The documents described in this section related to communications to participants are provided in English to English speakers and in Spanish to Spanish speakers. The examples shown in this document are the English language versions.

CONFIDENTIALITY AGREEMENT WITH PANEL MEMBERS

Panel member survey responses are confidential and personally identifying information is not revealed to clients unless the panel members gives NORC explicit permission to do so. Data is provided to clients with an anonymous record identification number. This number is generated for each separate study so the same number is not used for a specific panel member across all data files.

AmeriSpeak Panel members are notified of a new survey by email or telephone, based on their preferred mode. Text for a standard survey invitation is show in Appendix E. Online panel members may also access their surveys through the AmeriSpeak web-portal. A panel member can complete a survey only once. Panel members may withdraw from the panel at any time and may refuse to answer any survey questions they do not wish to answer. The AmeriSpeak Privacy Policy and Terms and Conditions are available on the www.amerispeak.org website, and included below in Appendix C and D. For all panel members, NORC mails paper copies of the Privacy Policy and Terms & Conditions as part of a panel member welcome kit that is sent shortly after a person joins AmeriSpeak.

OBTAINING CONSENT FOR SPECIFIC SURVEYS

The vast majority of surveys conducted on the AmeriSpeak Panel do not require the collection of additional consent for participation for the following reasons: panel members have already agreed to participate in surveys, and surveys are determined to be except research that have minimal risk for participants. For certain studies that cover sensitive topics, or interviewing of minors, for example, a study specific consent may be required. These will be determined on a case by cases basis by NORC's IRB.

ADVERSE EVENT REPORTING

AmeriSpeak Panel members can contact NORC through a toll-free support number as well as by email. Support is provided by NORC staff specifically trained to provide assistance to AmeriSpeak panel members. The contact information is provided to panel members online at the www.amerispeak.org website and through email, phone and mail communications. This allows panel members to contact NORC with any questions or concerns regarding a study. If an adverse event is reported NORC will report this information to the NORC IRB as well as appropriate study investigators and project team.

DATA AND RECORD STORAGE

NORC is responsible for the receipt and collection of sensitive data on a large number of projects for the federal government and other clients. We focus on advanced methodologies to manage vast amounts of data while maintaining high security. This work is enabled by very large and expandable Storage Area Networks (SANs), relational database management systems, Internet-enabled applications, high capacity back-up infrastructure, and the use of virtual servers.

NORC's security program is compliant with federal government regulations and can be adapted easily to meet the unique requirements of any project. Recent years have been highlighted by breaches in computer security of various government agencies as well as private industry. As a result, every organization has been challenged to meet the potential for such security issues with multilayered approaches to securing computer systems and the data they contain. NORC takes the matter of computer security seriously and has developed a multi-tiered approach to managing the issues surrounding computer and data security.

On many of our projects, compliance with NIST 800-53 recommendations is a requirement. NORC currently has other government projects that require similar compliance, and recent audits by those projects have found that our systems meet or exceed these requirements. We have projects underway for the Department of Labor, the Federal Reserve, and the Bureau of the Census that require independent audits to confirm compliance. In each case we have successfully met the NIST standards.

Physical security/facilities. NORC takes great care to enforce physical security measures specifically designed to ensure that access to confidential data is restricted to only those employees who possess the need, as well as the authorization, to review such information.

Network data security. NORC requires the use of internal network data storage services to store all project-related data files. Partitioned network storage is provided for each project to mitigate the potential for data loss due to accidents, computer equipment malfunction, or human error, as well as to administer access rights regarding privacy issues related to both legal and contractual obligations. Wide arrays of network security precautions are undertaken by NORC to ensure the proper storage of all project data.

Application security. Application security is an important matter at NORC and we strictly adhere to demanding procedures when dealing with these applications. Software logins are designed to use a specifically encrypted challenge/response technology. All NORC applications that manage case, response, and corporate financial data protect against unauthorized access and restrict authorized access to the minimum necessary level.

Case-level security. Data access restriction is accomplished through the use of unique case identifiers that allow the database to create a partition between response data and other data that could be used to identify an individual. NORC retains the option to augment any standard application security practice on a particular project so as to accommodate any special needs that may arise. In addition, the launch of NORCSuite 3 strengthens our ability to do so.

Encrypted data and communication. All remote access to internal NORC computing resources requires two-factor authentication and encrypted channels. Only secure, encrypted file transfers are used when exchanging files with clients and/or partners over the Internet. All of NORC's laptop computers are provisioned with an automatic full disk encryption system to protect against loss of sensitive data should any of these machines be lost or stolen.

Electronic data transfer external to NORC. All data used by NORC staff is stored within and transmitted on NORC's private network and is secured as described above in the section titled "Network data security." Should a project obligation require that the data be electronically transmitted to or from NORC's secure, private network, standard protocol dictates that encryption technology be used. Due to the variety of data delivery requirements that projects may demand, any enhanced electronic transfer security can be addressed within alternative protocols.

Access control / authentication. All user credentials and associated access permissions are subject to the controls and standards maintained by NORC's IT department. In particular, passwords must meet stringent requirements for length and complexity and must be changed on a regular basis.

Backup and retrieval procedures. All data that currently resides on the NORC network is backed up on a nightly basis. The backups are then stored in a secure, off-site location. Any archived information is retrievable from the storage facility within a few hours. Only a limited number of NORC's IT personnel are authorized to request the retrieval of these data media from the off-site location. This retrieval process requires a strict identification and authorization procedure. Backups made for the purpose of disaster recovery have a retention period of one year. NORC maintains a Disaster Recovery Plan as part of its standard operating procedure, so that in the event of a major system outage, production systems can quickly be restored and normal operations resumed.

Virus protection. To keep viruses and other malware from entering our systems, NORC IT has taken several preventative measures. All NORC computer systems are protected from computer viruses by centrally managed anti-malware software and distribution of the latest security patches. NORC's network is further protected by tightly controlled firewalls and email filtering technology.

Project personnel security practices and procedures. NORC conducts a pre-employment background investigation on each new or returning employee (if the returning employee has been gone for over one year or has not previously had a background investigation conducted). Additionally, NORC may require employees transferring to a new project or different department to undergo a new background investigation. Offers to new hires are contingent upon the satisfactory completion of a background investigation, and all NORC employees must complete a Commitment to Confidentiality form as a condition of employment. In addition, all staff members receive security training specific to the project to which they are assigned.
